Chancellor Eric Grimson
October 2, 2013

Chancellor Grimson thinks it is important to educate people on the proper channels to go through. He believes that the UA SAC report should emphasize principles, and not read as a contract.

He discussed the need to make sure that quieter voices are heard through admin-student communication, which we agreed was always a difficult task.

We discussed the flow of information during the decision making process. We agreed that UA SAC should continue to evaluate what methods of communication are most effective for admins to use to reach out to students. Also, it was noted that it should always be made clear (especially to student leaders and representatives) what information is confidential and what should be shared with the larger student body.

We discussed committee representatives, and Chancellor Grimson emphasized that students should be representatives of the entire student body, and not more narrow interest groups. The Chancellor additionally suggested the use of a website explaining the organizational structure of MIT.
